Easy Tips
To Get Your Home Ready
For The Season

From the CEO's Desk

The monsoon season transforms my home into a sanctuary of comfort and joy. Even before it begins, the first showers on parched earth bring a sense of relief and renewal, their scent promising new life, growth, and freshness.

A garden, once withered under the harsh sun, springs back to vibrant life, leaves glistening with rainwater. The rhythmic raindrops on the roof create a soothing tune music, perfect for cozy indoor afternoons. Inside, the atmosphere shifts to a cooler, more inviting ambience.

Windows open to welcome the cool breeze, and fluttering curtains add a whimsical touch. Rain becomes a constant companion, its gentle murmur filling the house and the aroma of hot tea invites everyone to the living room to share stories and laughs.

Accompanied with occasional thunderstorms are a few things that call our attention, a leak here or some dampness there and a home that deserves a little extra care. The monsoon invites us to look inwards and at our homes, to fix, redo and retouch nooks and corners of our homes and hearts. We embrace the tranquility and newness this cherished season brings, reminding us of life's cyclical nature. The monsoon is a season of rejuvenation, of change and of embracing the beauty of a muddy garden or a moody sky.

The Sweet Traditions of Ugadi

The Provident team was reminiscing about what Ugadi looked like back in the day and this brought up the tradition of sharing sweets with our friends and neighbours. The residents of Provident Park Square and Provident Sunworth City were surprised with some sweet treats that led to warm smiles and meaningful memories.
